

Primus One and Primus One Broadband

1. If within 30 consecutive days the Customer makes more than 5 times the average number of Local Calls made by Primus consumer telephony customers during the previous calendar month, Primus (without affecting its right to terminate Primus One services at any time) may elect to not make Primus One available to the Customer. In such event the Customer agrees that it will be reasonable for Primus to give the Customer notice to the effect that on the expiry of 30 days from such notice Primus will no longer bear any obligation to provide Primus One services or any other services unless the Customer has arranged to transfer to an alternative service provided by Primus.
2. If within any period of 30 consecutive days the Customer makes or the Customer's telephone service registers greater than 1000 Local Calls Primus (without affecting its right to terminate Primus One Broadband services in terms of this Agreement) may elect to not make Primus One Broadband available to the Customer. In such event the Customer agrees that it will be reasonable for Primus to suspend the Customer's service without notice, Primus may terminate the service at any time after 30 days has elapsed from such suspension unless the Customer has arranged to transfer to an alternative service provided by Primus.
3. If Customer or any other person uses the dial-up Internet Access service concurrently with the broadband Internet Access service, Primus (without affecting its right to terminate Primus One services at any time) may elect to not make Primus One available to the Customer. In such event the Customer agrees that it will be reasonable for Primus to give the Customer notice to the effect that on the expiry of 30 days from such notice Primus will no longer bear any obligation to provide Primus One services or any other services unless the Customer has arranged to transfer to an alternative service provided by Primus. If Customer elects to transfer to an alternative service provider for broadband services Customer will be required to pay any applicable early termination charges if termination is within the minimum term for that service.
